President's Report

President Bauer provided an update on continuing efforts to keep the campus community safe and healthy during the COVID pandemic and the university will be releasing a statement soon concerning the easing and elimination of restrictions contingent on continuing declines in cases. Projections for the incoming fall 2022 freshman class are excellent. A six-month progress review was completed for the Strategic Plan and substantial progress has been achieved in updating and upgrading our academic portfolio and we have established a stand-alone Grants Office, Diversity/Equity/Inclusion Office, and a Center for Lifelong Learning and Campus Partnerships. A one-year progress report will be presented at the June Board retreat. The Gateway Project continues to move forward and we will continue to look for additional funding sources to complete the project. The Vern Riffe Center for the Arts closed out 2021 with a very busy December. We hosted everything from the annual Christmas Gift to Portsmouth concert, A Charlie Brown Christmas to the Autumn 2021 Commencement, and finally the Performing Arts Academy's performance of Winter Soldier. Now that we're rejuvenated after winter break, we're full steam ahead. January is always used as a planning month. We're working to pin down exact shows for the 2022-2023 series. Then subsequent planning for subscriptions and a publication will begin. This month is also used to plan out/apply for the next grant cycle. We're working closely with the SSU Development Foundation as well as, the SSU Grants office to ensure efficiency.

The Covert-Smith Theater is host to several commercial rentals this fiscal year. This is not only financially beneficial but also demonstrates good will with our community. ### Kricker Innovation Hub & Entrepreneurship

For the last Entrepreneurial Journey Speaker Series of the Fall semester, the Kricker Innovation Hub combined an engaging panel discussion and happy hour for our Ignite Portsmouth alumni, partners, and future participants on December 9th. We featured three local professionals in the discussion; Kelly O'Bryant, Matt Seifert, and Matt Setters held an informative Q&A session and networked with 26 attendees.

The Hub also conducted a survey of current SSU gaming students during this year's Shawnee Game Conference. The survey illustrated that students are eager to self-launch a game while at SSU or in post-grad and described barriers to success, including financial barriers, industry experience, and availability of time.

The Hub staff is currently completing an intensive technical assistance process from the Center on Rural Innovation to apply for an EDA Build to Scale grant. Over the next several weeks, the Hub will engage in meetings, workshops, and webinars designed to hone the grant application.

Vice President's Report

Late last month, the Center of Rural Innovation and Rural Innovation Strategies, Inc. published a case study on Portsmouth, Ohio outlining the potential for a community like ours to achieve economic recovery through the tech economy. As this board knows, that was the impetus for the Kricker Innovation Hub and continues to be the strategy for the university to build entrepreneurial capacity as a regional comprehensive public university. I want to share a few passages from that study, the subject of which has largely been made possible by this Board's investments:

The handsome old building that once housed a clothing factory has been reborn as the Kricker Innovation Hub, a forge for scalable startup activity. The local college, Shawnee State University, is home to one of the Princeton Review's top 10 video game design programs in the country, positioning its students on the cutting edge of digital creativity and production. And nearly 100 years on from Portsmouth's time as an NFL city, it is home to an entirely new type of competitor — esports athletes who are flourishing as part of the area's gaming culture. ...

Two decades after he arrived in Portsmouth to teach history at Shawnee State University, [SSU history professor] Andrew Feight is using 21st-century tools to breathe new life into the area's past and make it more accessible than ever. A tenured professor of American and digital history, Feight's scholarly research drove the establishment of the Shawnee Digital History Lab in 2005 and its growth into the school's Center for Public History, opening this fall. But where many would've simply channeled their research into book, Feight saw an opportunity to go further, go digital. ...

"I've had a couple different majors. I started off pre-med, and then realized I wasn't really happy in that. And then I went to psychology, I wasn't happy in that. ... Not knowing what I wanted to do sparked Local Happenings. That sparked my idea of, 'Okay, I really love doing this stuff — I love photography, videography, marketing in general.' And so that's kind of where I realized that this is what I love doing, and this is what I want to continue doing. Along the way, [SSU alumnus and former Student Trustee] Audrey [Scheisser] also managed to launch a complementary startup, Appalachian Marketing and Media, to help connect local businesses to digital markets in other ways. ...

Board of Trustees Meeting

February 11, 2022

Thank you, Chairman Furbee.

This is our first Board meeting since the beginning of the new year and much has happened. I can report first that the 2022 ice storm thankfully turned out to be a dud for SSU and southern Ohio. Always lead off and end with good news.

As for our continuing efforts to keep the campus community safe and healthy during the COVID pandemic, I can report the following:

- Omicron Surge hit the campus ... 70 cases during move-in week, 60 more during the first week, 100 FSS new cases three weeks ago. Reduced to 39 new cases two weeks ago. 21 new cases last week. 28 currently active cases of FSS.
- SSU continues to follow the recommendations of the CDC and our local health dept as best we can. Our Health Clinic and Health Team are doing an excellent job of addressing all of the changes brought on by the recent surge.
- It is becoming increasingly more evident that our outlook now is different from what it was at this time last year. Last year, we were just seeing the first wave of vaccinations with no approved and effective therapeutics. Cloth masks, social distancing were considered to be at least somewhat effective in slowing the spread. Now vaccinations are available to nearly every one and, although they seem to be less effective at protecting against Omicron infections, they continue to be very effective at guarding against serious disease. And, by the way, cloth masks are apparently not very effective at guarding us against Omicron either but KN95 and N95 masks are. We are providing those mask upgrades to all of those who request them. New therapeutics have emergency approvals and their availability is being ramped up in our health systems. SSU has been largely successful in reducing COVID transmissions on campus over the last two years but, of course, that's not the case in the region.
- We continue to hold weekly clinics designed to get more students and staff vaccinated and encourage vaccination short of mandating it. Well over 70% of our staff is vaccinated and approx. 70% of our residential students are also vaccinated.
- The pandemic has certainly taken its toll on faculty, staff and students. COVID fatigue is high and morale is low after two years of restrictions and this has been especially evident during this current and hopefully last surge of cases.
- The University will be releasing a statement soon concerning the offramp to COVID protocols. The easing and elimination of restrictions will be contingent on continuing declines in cases on campus and within the county as well as on continued increases in vaccination rates.
- I think it is absolutely necessary for our campus to begin more normal conditions and life before we reach the end of spring semester. We have already lost a significant number of prospective students and have failed to retain students this year that we would have normally through our retention actions and services.

In a related matter, earlier today, you were provided with information about our AY 2021-22 enrollment now that we have spring semester numbers in the books. Those numbers were disappointing. During the first year of the COVID... I said on many occasions that the impact that the pandemic has had on enrollment is not as bad as it could have been. This year ... it has turned out to be as bad as expected and in some ways worse ... a 10% decline in FT undergraduate and graduate students for spring semester will cause us to alter our plans and change our goals. Granted that we continue to have federal support to help us through the current year, but we will not have that support for next FY. As difficult as conditions might seem, the future is bright for Shawnee. We are following through with much of our strategic plan and our projections for the incoming freshman class are excellent. We are setting up the foundation that will ensure Shawnee's future. Although we will be burdened with declines from the previous two years for a few years to come, I am confident that we can get back on track toward our enrollment, retention, and completion goals soon.

Speaking of our Strategic Plan – Shawnee at 40 – we completed our first progress review in January. This was based on the first six months the plan has been in place. The following are a few highlights of that review:

- Substantial progress has been achieved in updating and upgrading our Academic Portfolio
  - Creation and investment in the School of Business
  - Beginning development on new graduate programs in Business and Nursing
  - Additional online programs and short-term certificate programs
  - Dashboard of academic programs so we can more easily track their performance
- We established a stand-alone Grants Office, Diversity/Equity/Inclusion Office, and a Center for Lifelong Learning and Campus Partnerships. The latter is especially important in our expansion of certificate programs and programs for adult learners. Each of these offices has already brought value to the campus and I have confidence their contributions will grow.
- At the June Board Retreat, I will provide you with a one-year progress report which will include revisions and updates to strategic plan based on rapidly changing conditions in higher education.

Unfortunately, our new VP/CFO – Dr. Jonica Burke - had to deliver her first report to the Board from Hawaii. Unfortunate in that we could not join her. Dr. Burke is a great acquisition and we are looking forward to her leadership and service for years to come.

Our Gateway Project continues to move forward. We have a detailed architects' plan in tow. Last week, I presented the plan to the county commissioners. As you know, the success of the Gateway Project will require close coordination and partnership with the city and county. The commissioners are pleased with our plan and the county's Landbank has provided the Development Foundation with access to $250 K in state funding for demolition of old, decaying buildings on Chillicothe Street. These properties are part of the overall plan for development along the southern margin of the Arts and Innovation District. We will continue to look for additional funding sources to complete the project.

The big news in Ohio was the announcement that Intel has agreed to place their advanced semiconductor/microchip industry in Licking County. This project will begin with a $20 B phase 1 and may include over $100 B of investment in infrastructure over the next 5 – 10 years. That investment does not include spin-off and supply chain businesses that will grow up around the industry. Licking County is a long way from Portsmouth but it is clear that Portsmouth and SSU can benefit indirectly and directly from this new industry in Ohio. I attended a presentation by the Lieutenant Governor on Thursday and LG made it clear that higher education institutions in Ohio were going to be critical in the success of the Intel project – providing research and workforce resources. Vice President Braun is starting the process of identifying our opportunities and ways that SSU can assist the Intel project.

And Chairman Furbee, that concludes my report.

UFS Report

Friday, February 11, 2022

Thank you for allowing me a few moments to address the Board.

As the president of the UFS, I am cognizant that we are still in a pandemic, which has caused the normal operations of our University to be altered. I believe we as the UFS have extended every conceivable grace within reason to allow the shared governance process of SSU to be nimble and make reasonable accommodations for our students, faculty, and administration. As this pandemic has continued, these changes have caused added stress on individuals and processes, and it appears individuals' resolve is starting to wear thin.

One issue that seems to have caused anxiety among faculty is implementing the new J1 system. With any new system launch, there are bound to be unforeseen issues. However, due to some of these issues (particularly around advising of students), these issues have caused concern and impacted multiple offices on campus. Fortunately, UFS has been able to voice many of the issues with the administration, and steps have been taken to address them with faculty involvement. I want to thank Dr. Ahuja for welcoming faculty input and sharing our voice in correcting the implementation issues.

At the Ohio Faculty Council (OFC), many institutions have tried to get their voices heard by their respected Boards. I want to thank the Board for allowing me to address you I would like to invite you to our UFS meetings. We are meeting virtually through the rest of the spring 2022 semester, but I will be sure to extend an invitation and provide the link for our meeting for any BOT member who would like to attend. I will conclude my remarks and would be more than happy to take any questions you may have.

Respectfully submitted.
